

Network Member Bio

Mary Min-chin Lee is an Associate Professor of Pediatrics Duke University Medical Center. Her interests are in developmental reproductive endocrinology, with a recent focus on cell-to-cell interactions important in sexual differentiation and testicular development. Dr. Lee received her A.B. in East Asian Literature and Languages from Harvard/Radcliffe College and her M.D. from SUNY Buffalo School of Medicine. Her clinical work is in general pediatric endocrinology with particular clinical interest in disorders of the reproductive system including intersex conditions, testicular dysfunction, and early or late puberty.